The San Dieguito River Park

The San Dieguito River Valley Regional Open Space Park Joint Powers Authority (JPA) is a local, independent, governmental agency created in 1989 by six public agencies: the cities of Del Mar, Escondido, Poway, San Diego, and Solana Beach, and the County of San Diego. The JPA is governed by a nine-voting member Board of Directors, one each from the cities of Del Mar, Escondido, Poway, and Solana Beach, two each from the City and County of San Diego, and the chair of the Citizens Advisory Committee. A representative of the 22nd District Agricultural Association serves as an ex-officio non-voting Board member.

The JPA is a unique multi-jurisdictional public agency designed to help create and maintain an open space park within the San Dieguito River Valley that extends from Volcan Mountain near Julian to the beach in Del Mar, a length of over 55 miles in partnership with other public and private entities. The overarching goal of this collaborative effort is to create a regional open space greenbelt and park system that protects the waterways and natural and cultural resources, and to provide a coordinated system of preserved lands with a connecting corridor of walking, equestrian, and bicycle trails. The SDRP's main recreational feature is called the Coast to Crest Trail, a planned 71-mile long multi-use regional trail from the coast in Del Mar to the crest at Volcan Mountain, 48 miles of which is complete.

The JPA owns and manages over 3,000 acres of land and there are 73 miles of public trails within the San Dieguito River Park. The JPA also owns and operates park assets such as its office headquarters in San Pasqual Valley, a coastal ranger station, the Lake Hodges Pedestrian/Bicycle Bridge, Sikes Adobe Historic Farmhouse, and numerous other recreational features. In addition to its park services and trails system, the JPA is the long-term land manager for several hundred acres of restored wetlands at the San Dieguito Lagoon as well as for numerous Habitat Management Areas for which the agency has received non-wasting endowments.
